

February in Indiana is when we get most of our bad weather. Needless to say, only the diehard trap shooters are shooting (and I am not one of them). There are some registered shoots that are being held every month. I certainly commend these shooters who get out in 0 degree weather to shoot clay targets.

Remember to make plans to attend the Indiana Zone Shoots. The Northern Zone will be held at St. Joe Valley Conservation Club (date not established yet). The Central Zone will be held at Fall Creek Conservation Club, May 10-12, 2014. The Southern Zone will be held at the Columbus Gun Club, May 24-25, 2014. Some clubs may hold a preliminary day on Friday. You can contact the club for information. Also mark your calendars for the Indiana State Shoot July 8-13, 2014 at Indiana Gun Club. I hope everyone will mark their calendars for these shoots in 2014. The host clubs go to a lot of work to host these shoots and I know they look forward to giving the shooters the best targets possible. St. Joe Valley will also be a host site for the ATA Central Zone Shoot on August 1, 2, and 3. Don't forget to visit our web-site, indianatrapshooters.com, for other gun club information throughout Indiana. I can be reached at king8a@yahoo.com.

Roland king